Chest Drive Launched

Volunteers In Field to Seek $61,095 Quota

$20,007 In Early Gifts Reported At Kick-Off Meeting

Spurred by the challenging words of Community Chest Fund leaders at a dinner meeting Monday night in the Memorial Building, teams of volunteer solicitors embarked today in quest of $61,295 to finance 11 local "red feather" agencies for the ensuing year.

Optimistic that the goal can be achieved in one week, team captains were instructed to make daily reports to the Chest Headquarters which have been established at the Camera Shop, State St. and Broadway.

The Rev. William Spearman, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, the keynote speaker at the "kick-off" meeting, cited the humanitarian work of the Community Chest as an exemplification of the love of God in individuals who know that they can best serve Him by helping others.

"OUT OF GRATITUDE for what He has done for us, we are motivated to work for and contribute to the Chest," he declared.

Convinced of the value of the Community Chest to the community, team workers must be enthusiastic in their solicitations and be infectious of others and the campaign will succeed, the speaker pointed out.

Concerning people who don't give to the Chest, the Rev. Spearman said he felt "sorry for those who live unto themselves."

General Campaign Chairman Albert Hanna, who said he was confident that the drive would be a success, reported advance gifts totaling $20,007.

Robert Oswald, co-chairman, reviewed the instructions for the various teams of solicitors and stressed the Chest slogan "Salem Cares." He expressed appreciation

Metropolitan Issue Is On Ohio Ballot

Federation Amendment Eases Growing Pains

The metropolitan federation amendment proposal, Question No. 1 on the Nov. 4 ballot, is vital to the 12 metropolitan counties in Ohio. It would have no effect in the other 76 counties, but there "yes" votes are needed if the amendment is to be passed. This is the second of four articles outlining the amendment.

By GILBERT F. SHEPARD

Brush-Moore Staff Writer

The metropolitan federation amendment, up for a vote by Ohio electors Nov. 4, is designed to help larger cities reverse a damaging

Salem Schools to Aid In Test Program

The Salem school system has been selected as one of about 15 school systems, large and small, in the United States, to aid in the standardization of the new Metropolitan Achievement tests.

These tests are used throughout the country to aid teachers in properly rating their pupils. Through these tests, an instructor is able to determine the academic achievement, or grade placement level of the students.

"I am very proud of this," said E. S. Kerr, superintendent of schools. "We were chosen out of thousands for this important and exacting task."

The work is being carried on under the direction of Miss Dorothy E. Smith, supervisor in the Salem elementary schools. Each participating student will first be given the Pintner test, a pure test of mental ability and will be used as a basis on which to judge the Metropolitan test.

The Metropolitan Achievement test is revised every five years, and this revision will be printed by the World Book Co. The test will be used by millions of students in schools throughout the United States.

Over the years, the Salem schools have maintained a rigid system of academic classification and school officials feel that this is the main reason the honor has been given to Salem's school system.

Industrial Pay Here Shows Increase

Salem's industrial payroll of $1,598,950 in September was $45,633 higher than the payroll of $1,553,317 recorded in August, Castle M. Smith, executive secretary of the Salem Area Chamber of Commerce reported today.

Last month's figure marked the second straight time the payroll has gone up. The figure jumped to $1,553,317 in August from the total of $1,540,819 in July.

Despite the increase, the year's total to date is $14,968,041, or $1,416,678 less than the nine-month total of $16,384,719 recorded through September, 1957.

Smith said plans for the organization's annual meeting are progressing rapidly and that the program is being devoted to the "Men and Management of the Salem Area Industries."

Smith said also that there has been renewed activity in the past few weeks in industrial inquiries that have come to his office.

He said that contacts for new industries have been made in Detroit, Ontario, southern Ohio, Cleveland and New York.

NEED FOR SOME such arrangement has been apparent since the end of World War II. However, as cities, counties and townships presently are organized, a patchwork of separate political jurisdictions makes it impossible for many metropolitan residents to enjoy every modern-day service.

Law enforcement officials, for instance, are unable to provide assistance to anyone who happens to live beyond an artificial line denoting their jurisdiction. Firemen cannot answer certain calls which are out of their territory.

Many stories are told of peoples losing their homes and possessions simply because a fire company, located near their home, was unable to respond to their call for help because it served a different municipality.

BY THE TIME another fire company — often a volunteer unit requiring at least a short time to assemble — arrived from a more distant point, there was little left for it to do.

Metropolitan areas which would benefit from the proposed amendment on the ballot include Canton, Lima, Hamilton, Springfield, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati.

Justice Burton Retiring From Supreme Court

'Devoted, Dedicated Public Service' Praised by Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Harold H. Burton is retiring next Monday after 13 years on the Supreme Court—opening the way for the court's first Eisenhower-appointed majority.

The White House announced the 70-year-old jurist's unexpected request for retirement Monday night a short time after the court opened its regular fall term.

The announcement gave no indication of whom President Eisenhower might name as a successor to Burton or how soon he might act.

Burton, a Republican, wrote Eisenhower he was retiring "with regret but in accordance with competent medical advice and with a desire to serve the best interests of all concerned." Burton's two-paragraph letter didn't elaborate.

Praised Burton

Approving the request, Eisenhower praised Burton for "devoted and dedicated public service."

Eisenhower's appointment of a successor will be his fifth to the nine-man court.

Except for his selection of Chief Justice Warren — a former California governor — an twice an aspirant to the Republican presidential nomination — Eisenhower has picked Supreme Court judges from other judicial posts.

Of the three other Eisenhower appointees, Justices John M. Harlan and Charles Evans Whittaker were federal appeals court judges and Justice William J. Brennan was a member of the New Jersey State Supreme Court.

With Burton leaving, the court has five Democratic and three Republican members, the latter being Warren, Harlan and Whittaker.

Burton's retirement leaves the court with only one justice, Tom C. Clark, who was appointed by former President Truman. The other three were named by Franklin D. Roosevelt. They are Justice Hugo L. Black, Felix Frankfurter and William O. Douglas.

Rhodes said that final distribution of 1957 motor vehicle license was made Oct. 1. Mahoning County received $260,720.37, and Columbiana County obtained $129,501.18.

Activities Under Way at New YW

By HARRY SAVAGE
On the hill, half a block north of Third St., a five-year-old dream is becoming a reality. On Oct. 26, the new YWCA building at 364 N. Lincoln Ave. will be dedicated.

This is especially interesting when you note that, five years ago, the city had no YWCA at all. It wasn't until the death of Mrs. Edith Ritz and the subsequent willing of her $40,000 estate to the construction of a Young Women's Christian Association building in Salem, that the seed of a "Y" was planted in the minds of Salem women. With the encouragement of this available money, these women began to think seriously of what a YWCA could mean to the community.

After all the floats had been dismantled and the costumes put back in the attics, someone recalled Mrs. Ritz's will. It stated that the citizens must use the money to build a YWCA by Jan. 3, 1958. This was in the summer of 1956 and the Salem women rolled up their sleeves and went to work. On Oct. 23, 1957, ground was broken for the tri-level, sandstone

Guided Tours Planned Oct. 25

Open House Is Set At New High School

An open house will be held at the new Salem senior high school Saturday, Oct. 25, from 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. The open house will feature guided tours of the 40-classroom building. Until now, only small groups have gone through the new, $2,000,000 structure.

Open house before the Lincoln Ave. roadway is completed would not be possible, the Board of Education explained at their regular October meeting, Monday evening.

Without adequate parking space there would be no way to accommodate the visitors. The Lincoln

Ave. project includes parking space for more than 200 cars. "The school isn't completely equipped yet," explained E. S. Kerr, superintendent of schools. "But we are sure of finishing by the 25th."

Gym classes have not yet been held at the high school, because the workmen are still busy finishing the partition which will divide the large gymnasium. Woodworking and metal shops, as well as the chemistry and biology laboratories, will be ready by the 25th.

GM Agrees on Contract for IUE Workers

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. said today agreement has been reached on an over-all, national contract covering its 25,000 employees who are members of the International Union of Electrical Workers.

Local management and IUE representatives have turned, a GM spokesman said, to working out supplemental agreements covering the six individual plants in which the IUE represents employees. He reported progress, but said it was slow.

No details of the master pact were disclosed immediately. The IUE called a strike against GM last Thursday, concurrent with that of the United Auto Workers, which represents 275,000 hourly rated workers in GM's coast-to-coast industrial network.

The UAW and GM reached agreement on a master, national contract Thursday, but UAW members who struck 12 hours earlier refused to return to jobs pending settlement of local grievances. Only four plants have returned to production since.

GM and IUE contracts usually follow the UAW pattern. The new three-year GM - UAW contract gives workers an estimated 24 to 30 cents more an hour over that period.

Soviet Aircraft Not Damaged; Didn't Attack

Antiaircraft Guns First Shot Since Red's Cease-Fire

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Nationalist Chinese antiaircraft guns on Quemoy punctuated the cease-fire in the Formosa Strait this afternoon, firing on eight Communist planes which flew over the offshore island.

The Nationalist Defense Ministry said the Red aircraft did not attack and were not hit by the Nationalist fire. They flew back toward the mainland.

The Quemoy antiaircraft batteries were the first guns to go off in the area since the Communists proclaimed a seven-day cease-fire, effective 40 hours before.

Observers in Taipei did not consider the Quemoy truce had necessarily been broken, since the earlier Communist announcement had spoken only of halting the artillery bombardment against besieged Quemoy and the neighboring Nationalist islands.

Escorted Supplies
U.S. Navy ships escorted more supplies to Quemoy today, again defying the Red demand that the cease-fire be accompanied by a halt to the American convoying.

The Reds had announced they would halt their attacks on the islands for a week beginning Sunday midnight if the Americans stopped escorting the Chinese Nationalist supply ships. But Monday and again today they offered no opposition to Nationalist convoys which still were shepherded by ships of the U.S. 7th Fleet to the three-mile limit off Quemoy.

Supplies also were dropped on Quemoy from Nationalist C-46 transports.

Operation Suspended
Reports from Washington said it was expected there the American escort operations would be suspended in a day or two, and that the suspension would continue as long as the cease-fire did.

32 Merchants View Film on Improving Shopping Districts

Thirty-two merchants took a "coffee break" at the Ohio Edison Co. this morning to see a film titled "The Look of Prosperity."

The showing of the film, dealing with modernizing downtown shopping areas, was arranged by Donald G. Reinhard, company representative of Ohio Edison, in cooperation with Herbert G. Gordon Jr., president of the Retail Merchants Division of the Salem Chamber of Commerce.

Robert E. Hall, president of the Chamber of Commerce spoke briefly to the group, declaring that the Chamber would fully back a Salem downtown modernizing program.

Pleased with the interest and attendance at this first "coffee break," Mr. Reinhard indicated that another such meeting is being considered by the Retail Merchants to further discuss how Salem's "main street" can be given a more modern look to encourage "downtown shopping."

DiSalle Hits Ohio Publicity Payroll

Democrat Leader in Youngstown Speech

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Michael V. DiSalle said here Monday there has been an undue and costly expansion of state public relations staff payrolls and brazen exploitation of their output to further political ambitions of Gov. C. William O'Neill.

The Democratic candidate for governor said his Republican opponent does not need to have a publicity mill operating on the present scale to keep the people of Ohio informed.

"Highway publicity alone has been reported to cost more than $155,000 yearly—about three times what it cost two years ago," DiSalle told campaign rally audiences here.

He cited as examples of department publications which "have been brazenly exploited for political purposes in recent months..."

"The cartoon-type booklet of the Welfare Department, carrying the governor's picture on the cover

A "Highway Facts" publication carrying "the name of the governor but nowhere the name of the highway director, nor, for that matter, very few verified facts."

"The press release cannot be substituted for the press conference," DiSalle said, "because it precludes the right of questioning, which the press has a right to expect. And even the press conference loses its effectiveness if it generates only a series of 'no comment' replies."

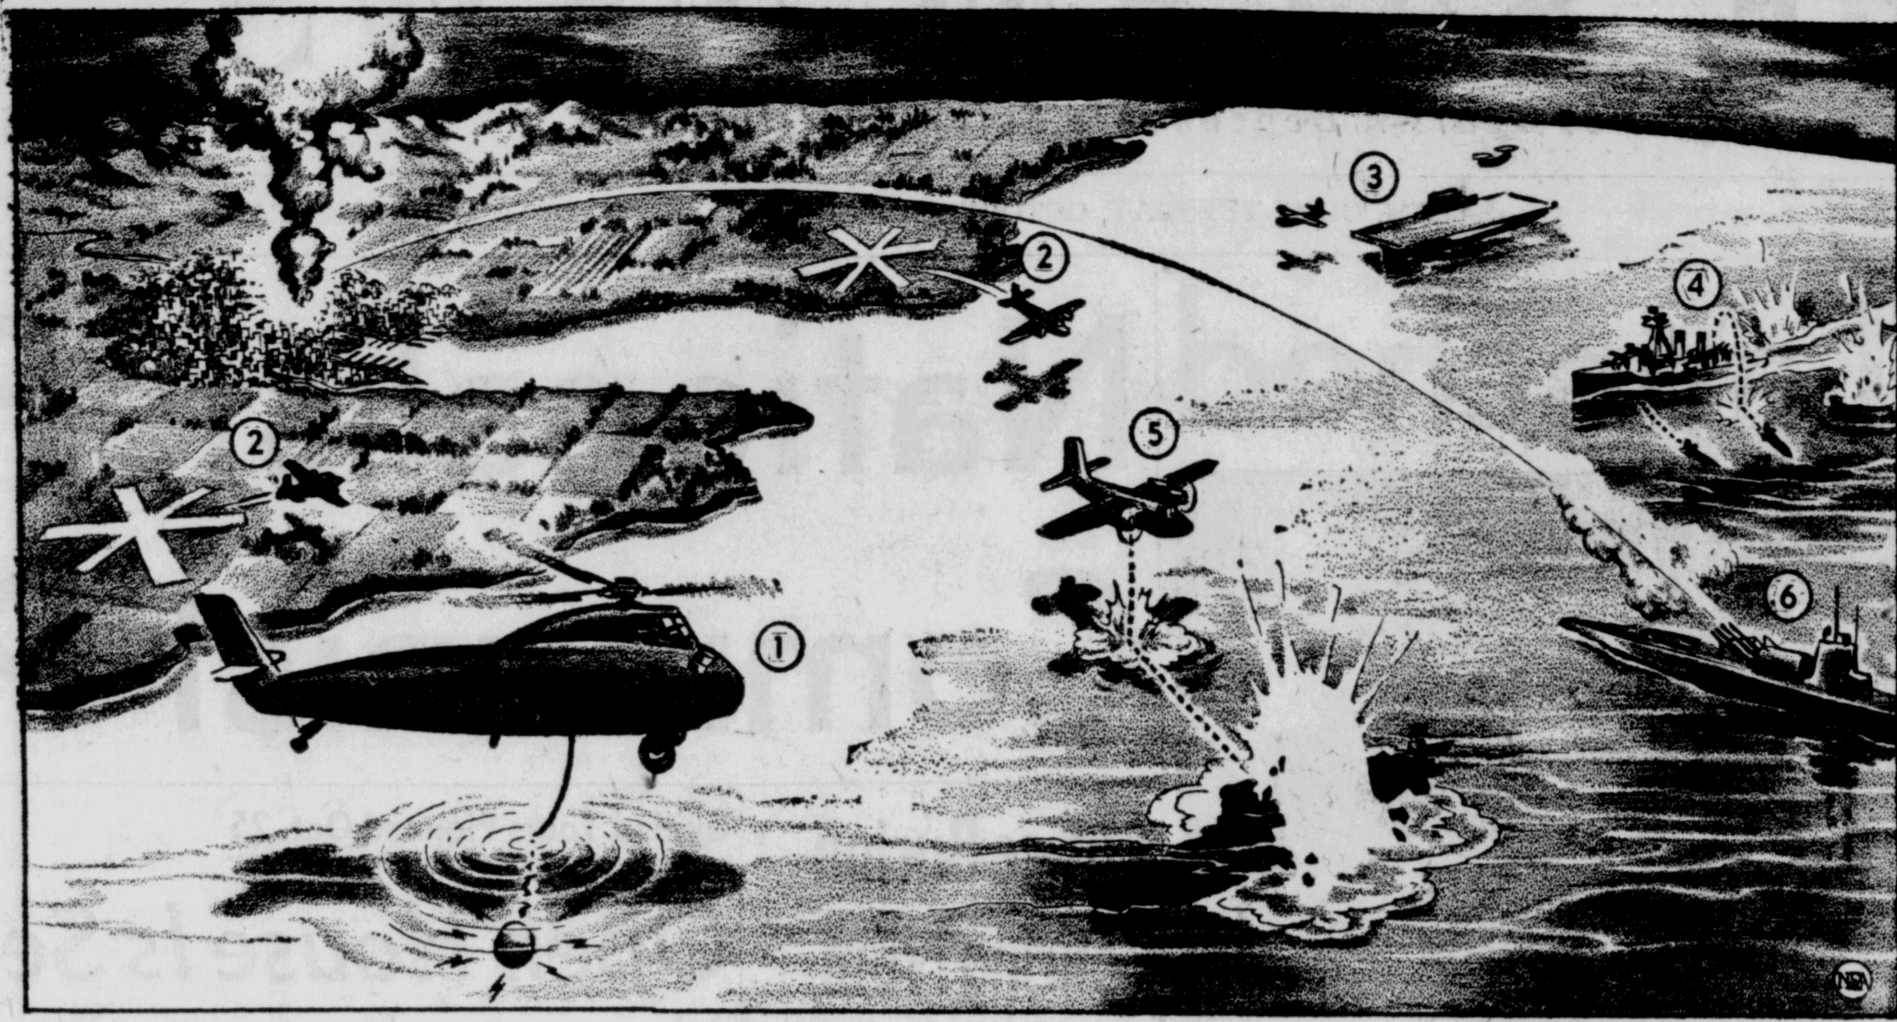

DiSalle, in speeches here and in nearby Campbell and Struthers said he had reports O'Neill supporters in Mahoning County were promising patronage to Democrats for their support.

SEA BATTLE OF THE FUTURE? — Since the advent of atom-powered submarines and sub-launched missiles, many military strategists warn that America's greatest danger lies in a sudden nuclear attack from the sea.

In order to counter this possibility, a number of antisubmarine weapons have been devised. Tracking exercises in both the Atlantic and the Pacific are continuously being carried out in order to improve their use.

Artist's drawing above, with perspectives compressed for clarity, envisions the actions that could take place in an undersea attack.

based on information that has been declassified.

One of the most important defensive weapons is the helicopter. In the scene above (1) it has picked up the sounds of a submarine pack by means of the sonar device trailing from it.

Land-based planes (2), a carrier (3) and a destroyer (4) are called to the area. Depth charge explosions can be seen in the wake of the destroyer, while both a conventional torpedo and one fired into the air by rocket seek out a sub. Locating another sub, a tracker plane (5), either from land or from a carrier, drops a homing torpedo which scores a kill. But one sub (6) has eluded detection long enough to surface and fire a nuclear-armed missile, in this case a winged, nonballistic type. Perfection of a ballistic missile capable of being fired underwater will greatly increase dangers of submarine effectiveness. Also in development are submarine vs. submarine weapons and tactics.

In this drawing, one city has been hit. The outcome of battle is still in doubt, although, as of today, the odds favor the attacker.

Guarding Your Health

By Dr. EDWIN P. JORDAN

Early Treatment Important In Glaucoma

Some exceedingly interesting and significant questions have been raised in a letter from Mrs. L.B. She writes that she is 52 and has recently discovered that she has glaucoma.

First, she wants to know if this disease can be avoided. She asks whether anything can be done to cure it except an operation, and whether I should recommend the operation or the use of eye drops. Finally, she asks how long a person with glaucoma can expect to regain his sight.

GLAUCOMA is one of the most serious diseases of the eyes and is responsible for a great deal of blindness. There are few diseases in which early diagnosis is so important, because treatment started promptly can prevent a great deal of unnecessary loss of vision. Some doctors like to divide glaucoma (with the exception of those resulting from injury or disease) into four main kinds: the acute inflammatory, the chronic inflammatory, the "absolute" and the chronic simple type.

Also, eye specialists recognize secondary glaucoma, which are not caused directly by blockage of the fluid drainage from the eye, but are the result of some other disease process either in the eye itself or elsewhere in the body.

In people in and past middle life, glaucoma should always be suspected.

In a letter on this subject, a physician wrote that suspicion should exist under the following conditions: when the patient is over 40 (two out of every 100 people over 40 have chronic glaucoma); when a family history of glaucoma exists; and when there is unexplained aching in or near the eyes.

Turning to Mrs. B's specific questions, I believe one can say that at present there is no way by which this disease can be prevented.

As to her questions on operation or the use of eye drops, this is a highly technical problem which must be decided by the physician after he has studied the situation.

IN SOME INSTANCES eye drops will be sufficient. In others this will be followed eventually by recommendation for operation. And in still others immediate operation may be best.

Mrs. B's final question on how long one can expect to retain sight depends also on individual circumstances. If the glaucoma has been discovered early and the treatments are successful, the vision may be kept almost indefinitely.

It is, however, important to remember — and I cannot emphasize this too strongly nor too often — that glaucoma does carry danger to sight. Therefore, both early diagnosis and expert treatment are of the greatest importance.

Blimp Walking

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

When the hula hoop craze finally burns itself out in an epidemic of dislocated hips, the fad makers of America might look into blimp walking as a replacement item. Bizarre, time-consuming, dandy escapism for old and young, blimp walking could become bigger than bingo. Bird walking and girl walking aren't even in the same league.

I was introduced to this little known sport when assigned to cover the recent flight of the Navy blimp, "Snow Goose," to the North Pole region.

The first of several lessons took place on a gravel runway in the Arctic with pot holes deep as oil drums, mud like an inch-thick layer of peanut butter and puffs of cold air like muskox's metatarsals.

It takes 50 men, 15 on each of the two forward mooring lines and 10 each on the lines amidship to nuzzle along the block-long silver bag puffed up with more than a million cubic feet of helium.

Blimp walking is done in two directions: toward the mooring mast or away from it, depending on where you want to go and where the wind wants to take you. Frequently these aims are in conflict. Then you either drag the blimp or it drags you.

It's a little like trying to get an elephant through a subway turnstile with a bent token.

Blimps are not exactly flown like a kite. They have engines for taking off and landing, but their mastadonic dimensions require some chaperoning. The technique is similar to berthing a big ocean liner: lines are cast off and grabbed and everyone hopes for the best.

"Snow Goose," always seemed to object to being led by the nose on a leash. Up on Cornwallis Island, 500 miles above the Arctic Circle, she threw a takeoff tantrum and veered off the runway into a ditch. Her right front landing gear held fast in the permafrost beneath the mud, and a distinguished ground handling crew, volunteers all (carefully selected by the Navy pronoun pool: "You, you and you"), set about extricating her.

The party included, among others, a Columbia University geologist, a Navy geographer and glaciologist, a commodore from the Canadian navy, the commandant of the RCAF base on that remote island, two cooks in crisp white uniforms, assorted commanders and lieutenant commanders, and an Associated Press reporter, namely myself.

Some of the best brains north of the Arctic Circle were on that mooring line when the pull signal was given. Some of the broadest bottoms on either side of the circle were immersed in the mud when it broke.

Blimp walking went over big. Everybody got in on it, mainly because there was nobody else.

All They Can Count Is Votes

In four and a half weeks, the election that only recently seemed to be in the distant future will be over.

All the votes will have been counted.

There is nothing else to count, however. Tally sheets have no place to record good intentions, high principles, red-hot resentment, or even grudging admiration.

Not even an automatic voting machine can provide a willing ear for a citizen too lazy to vote to explain why he was not on hand to pull the lever.

This is, in the judgment of a great many people who know their politics from A to Izzard, the sleeper in the 1958 election, which is going to be one of the key elections of recent years.

Here is why:

UNION POLITICIANS think they are within striking distance of winning domination over the Democratic party.

They are going all out in 1958 to assert their power in state legislatures and Congress, knowing if they can line up enough lawmakers in the states and in Washington they will have things pretty much their own way in 1960, in the presidential election.

They have the money from their well heeled treasuries to put on a political blitz. They have the organization to line up their voters and get them to the polls in unprecedented numbers in many places they stand a coordination through their tightly knit organizations to put their plans into widespread action. They have the advisers to tell them what to do and where to concentrate their efforts.

But the most valuable thing they have, as the campaign turns into the homestretch is evidence that in many places they stand a good chance to win by default. The only thing that can keep them from running away with the election are the candidates of the Republican party to whom they are opposed nearly 100 per cent, and they are counting on many Republican candidates to lose because their votes didn't show up.

The only thing that can keep Republican candidates from being swamped at the polls is a turnout of voters who favor them that will offset the expected turnout of voters who have been conditioned to oppose them.

THIS IS WHY there needs to be a tremendous upsurge in Republican determination in states like Ohio, which have been marked out for special effort by the United States "Labor" party that is making its strongest bid for domination of the moribund "Democratic" party this year.

In many contests, bona fide Democrats are as deeply involved in the showdown as Republicans. In many areas, the Democratic party as such never will be heard of again if the union politicians are successful in taking over its role in the two-party system.

Perhaps there should be a new two-party system.

Perhaps it should be the Republican party vs. the Labor party in the United States. But good idea or not, it should not happen because of any default by the opposition. The people who are hoping to bring it about by concentrating on the 1958 election think they have both Republicans and old-line Democrats on the run.

In France's recent showdown election, almost everybody voted, for a change. In this country's forthcoming showdown election, everybody should vote too, for a change.

That's all they can count after the polls are closed — votes.

If all the potential votes are cast, there will be no blitz by union politicians in 1958.

Even the Devil Deserves His Due

Sometimes the State Department is so anxious to prove its claim that the Soviet Union cannot be taken at its word that it comes close to twisting the word.

It has done this in its comment on an Atomic Energy Commission report that Russia has set off nuclear explosions inside the Arctic Circle. It says the explosions confirm U.S. suspicion that the Kremlin's proposal for a halt in nuclear weapon testing last March 31 was a cynical propaganda move.

Cynical propaganda move or not, the Kremlin's proposal last March 31 did contain an escape clause. It proposed that the United States and Great Britain join Russia in halting further nuclear tests and warned that Russia would feel free to resume its own tests if the other two governments had been carrying on tests of nuclear weapons continued to do so.

The United States and Great Britain have continued to do so.

Neither has any reason to feel surprised this fall because Russia apparently has decided to do still further testing of its own.

There was no report after March 31, when Russia stopped testing, up to the present of further nuclear explosions in the Russian area. But throughout the summer and continuing this fall, the United States has been setting off nuclear explosions and making no secret of them.

Whether it was propaganda, technical procedure, or a bona fide move to halt further testing of nuclear weapons, the Soviet Union had a long layoff and a belated resumption of nuclear tests, only after its March 31 proposal and warning had been shrugged off as a propaganda move.

If the State Department had acknowledged that Russia warned it would resume nuclear tests if the United States and Great Britain continued to conduct tests this summer, its own propaganda position would be stronger than it is when it merely accuses the Russians of bad faith.

Inducement To Work

The recent story about regimented vacations in Russia must have been particularly shocking to Americans.

If we in this country resent anything any more than being told how to work, it is being told how to have fun.

The story by Beverly Deepe, an American student who toured Russia, was enough to persuade an American to forego his "vacation" under such circumstances.

With almost military discipline, Miss Deepe said, the Russians at the tourist base she visited were routed out of bed at 7 a.m. by the sound of the Russian national anthem. Then they had 10 minutes of outdoor calisthenics and a quick wash in a mountain stream before breakfast.

That would be enough to send most American workers back to their jobs.

And maybe it sends the Russians back to their jobs, too, just as the Communist leaders planned.

By H. I. Phillips

Kisses, embraces, and the little cottage for two seemed to have been kept out by armed guards. It was a lesson in tact.

(PS: — We thought James Whitcomb Riley got the decision over Tin Pan Alley fairly.)

A BIG TOBACCO corporation is merging with a drug company. This could produce the pill that is taken only by sturdy outdoor men, and the cigarette that restores hair.

Biggest laugh in Little Rock crisis was that huge sign erected in front of a high school in which the word government was spelled wrong.

An American Medical Association committee has endorsed hypnosis in medical and dental cases. It is especially helpful for use as a patient reads the bill for services.

Traffic Safety Commission of New York State proposes a rating of safety factors and possible hazard in new cars each season. It wants the National Safety Council to give out ratings. The Council's reaction is reported to be a loud, "You can't do that to us."

New York firemen oppose any changes in the two-platoon system. Can you remember away back when firemen slept in firehouses and got home only occasionally?

A Glasgow professor says radiation from TV screens could in theory produce mutations manifested on descendants 2,000 years from now. Some of those "westerners" can ruin the human race in a much shorter time.

WILTON, CONN., dry from colonial days and a town which clung to prohibition after the Volstead repeal, has a citizen's group fight-community among young and old than ever before in history.

This is a slow motion discovery. Prohibition drove drinking into the home and made it a family pastime. It ushered in the fire-side bar, the kiddies cocktail party and the rumpled room in every home.

It is now too late to do anything about it, license or no license.

By RAYMOND MOLEY

House members: California 7, Florida 3, Michigan 2, Texas 2, Alaska 1, Arizona 1, Indiana 1, Maryland 1, Ohio 1, Oregon 1.

THE SEATS thus gained will be taken from the following states: New York 3, Pennsylvania 3, Arkansas 2, Massachusetts 2, Alabama 1, Georgia 1, Illinois 1, Iowa 1, Kansas 1, Maine 1, Minnesota 1, Mississippi 1, North Carolina 1, West Virginia 1.

Since the control of the various legislatures involved will have such a great bearing on the political and ideological character of Congress wise people are giving more attention than ever to the campaign and elections of members of the legislature.

Among those worldly-wise who are looking to that matter of political advantage are the leaders of the politically dedicated labor unions. For they are determined to do everything they can to have a House of Representatives which will pass no legislation that they oppose.

They have almost that sort of U.S. Senate now, judging by the votes in the recently adjourned Congress. It is the House which concerns them most, the House that blocked their Kennedy-Ives Bill.

And so in addition to giving generously of time and manpower to candidates for the U.S. Senate and House whom they favor, they are striving in every state to assure the election of their favorites for seats in the Legislatures.

THOSE MEMBERS are elected for the most part in districts.

That means working at the local level, providing propaganda, acquainting voters with the candidates, planning to put thousands of workers into registration efforts and at election to mobilize thousands of automobiles over the nation to get their vote to the polls.

No such effort is being made by the regulars in the old parties. They have neither the workers, the money nor the cars to command.

Consider, if you are of a conservative turn of mind, the states in which the gains and losses enumerated above appear. By a simple process of gerrymandering, legislatures in the states which will lose House members can out conservative and replace them with "liberal."

In states which gain members, it will be possible to make net gains for the cause. In states like Mississippi, Kansas, and Iowa the loss is almost certain to be the loss of a conservative. Maybe, in Maine also. And possibly in Massachusetts, North Carolina, and Minnesota.

In New York the legislature is likely to be Republican and conservative as in the past. But with big gain in California (the legislature is about evenly divided now after steady conservative losses for several years) and in Michigan, Oregon and possibly Florida, enough House seats may be turned to assure a liberal-labor balance in the House for years.

This is something every citizen should ponder as election nears.

Democrats' Challenge

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Should the U.S. Desert Its Allies in China?

President Eisenhower has challenged the leaders of the Democratic party to tell the nation whether they favor appeasement and surrender to the Communists. He has asked them, in effect, to speak out and say whether they really believe the United States is going to be deserted by its allies and hence faces military defeat if it stands up for its principles.

The President's view were expressed in a letter to Sen. Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island, the sturdy 91-year-old chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who holds his post by reason of his seniority of service and the Democratic party's control of Congress.

The issue before the American people in the November elections is whether Democrats or Republicans shall control Congress and the selection of committee chairmen. If the Democrats retain control, will the Communists take this as a signal that the American people repudiate the position taken by the President in the Far East and endorse the defeatist and surrender ideas which the administration attributes to the chief Democratic spokesman on foreign policy in the U.S. Senate?

The President points specifically to Sen. Green's statement that if the United States should become engaged in hostilities, there would not be "that support of the American people essential to successful military action." This an extraordinary statement for the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to make in the middle of an international crisis.

"You say," wrote the President to Sen. Green, "that in the event of hostilities we would be without allies 'in fact or in heart.' . . . not only do I believe that our friends and allies would support the United States if hostilities should tragically, and against our will, be forced upon us, but I believe that most of them would be appalled if the United States were spinelessly to retreat before the threat of Sino-Soviet armed aggression. . . .

"I deeply deplore the effect upon hostile forces of a statement that if we became engaged in battle, the United States would be defeated because of disunity at home. If that were believed, it would embolden our enemies and make almost inevitable the conflict which, I am sure, we both seek to avoid provided it can be avoided consistently with the honor and security of our country."

SEN. GREEN'S LETTER was couched in polite phrases. He did not give out the full text of his communication originally, but extracts from it appeared nevertheless in the press and were seized upon by Communist radio stations

Vice President Richard Nixon's unusually violent reaction to the release of information on mail received at the State Department on the Far East crisis was prompted by two factors:

1. The vice president's aides had information indicating at least some of the mail was the result of an organized plan.

2. Nixon's blast and his speeches supporting a firm policy in the Formosa Strait are designed to gain financial support for his anticipated 1960 presidential campaign from right-wing supporters of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Nixon said he was "shocked" at the release of information by the State Department that some 5,000 letters on China policy had been received in the past month and that 80 per cent were critical of U.S. policy.

JUST BEFORE leaving on a campaign trip, Nixon added that some of the letters were obviously "inspired." The State Department said some of the correspondence were mimeographed, some were on cards and most merely opposed any U.S. involvement in war over the off-shore islands.

Aides at the vice president's office have quietly passed the word to some reporters that they know of at least one campaign now under way to flood the executive offices with 30,000 letters opposing U.S. policy on China.

It was understood that the campaign was being sponsored by an organization known as Women United.

Mrs. Lloyd K. Garrison, wife of a well-known New York lawyer, was reported to be one of the planners of the campaign. Attempts to reach Mrs. Garrison at her summer home in Katonah, N. Y., and at her New York town house were unsuccessful.

So They Say
They (American ships) are authorized to throw everything but the kitchen sink.

—Rear Adm. Paul Blackburn, commander of the U.S. Taiwan (Formosa) Strait Patrol.

throughout the world as proof of American disunity.

What is at the bottom of this episode? Politics—petty partisanship—and the temptation to make an issue out of war talk in the newspaper headlines. It was too much for some politicians to resist.

While former President Truman by his statements had been supporting Mr. Eisenhower's policy in the Far East, various Democrats cultivating the impression by their public statements that the President is trying to drag the nation into war because of a couple of tions Committee to make in the in Congress have been assiduously unimportant islands off the coast of Red China.

Democratic leaders in Congress know better, because the resolution passed in 1955 by both houses with the overwhelming support of the two political parties specifically gave the President the right to use U.S. military forces to defend Formosa and protect the offshore islands, only if they were likely to be used as a base in an attack on Formosa, itself.

Is the Democratic party now going back on its word, and, for the sake of politics, is it willing to withdraw what it authorized in the resolution?

Evidently, 10 Democrats in the House who have just petitioned the president to summon a special session of Congress to discuss the Far Eastern problem want both houses to reconsider the vote. This kind of vacillation and retreat could drag America into war just as vacillation in the 1930s on the part of the West encouraged Hitler to attack.

THE HEROIC ANSWER to present-day appeasement has been given by the president. In his letter to Sen. Green, Mr. Eisenhower declares, "Firmness in supporting principle makes war less, rather than more, likely of occurrence." The President adds:

"I feel certain, beyond the shadow of doubt, that if the United States became engaged in hostilities on account of the evil and aggressive assaults of the forces of Communism, the American people would unite as one to assure the success and triumph of our effort."

But it's not "enough to achieve unity within a country only after war has broken out. Losses in life and treasure must then be incurred anyway. The important thing is, by a manifestation of unity and resoluteness, to prevent war from breaking out in the first place.

Opposition politicians in the Labor-Socialist party in Great Britain are today playing the same game as Democrats here in the United States. Yet, there are two conspicuous reminders in history of how weakness from within and disunity have led the potential enemy to decide it was an opportune time to make war.

Will history repeat itself now and will a third world war come from the same misguided counsels of overzealous politicians inside the Democracies?

Nixon's Shock

By DAVID BARNETT

Nixon had contended that some "subordinate" within the State Department was trying to "sabotage" the administration's foreign policy by releasing the information on the mail.

The State Department discounted the "sabotage" charge and said no action would be taken against anybody in the public correspondence branch of the department for making the information available.

THE SUGGESTION that the vice president was "wooing" the campaign dollars of the Chiang supporters was made by a Republican politician who is a supporter of the vice president.

The politician, who insisted that he not be named, said Nixon had been increasingly disturbed by the drying-up of sources of funds for the Republican party. He added:

"The Nixon blast was well designed to bring the dollars to him. The implication was that some holdover Democrat in the department was doing the damage and that if he, Nixon, were president, these birds would be routed out."

Nixon's personal position with the right-wingers became even stronger today, after the press conference of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. The consensus after the conference was that the administration was actively looking for a "face-saving device" to pull most of Chiang's forces out of the off-shore islands and, eventually, to turn the islands over to the Chinese Reds.

Harriman vs. Rockefeller for Governor's Seat

2 Millionaires Vie in New York Election

By JAMES DEVLIN
NEW YORK (AP)—Remember the tycoon who once said "The public be damned!"?
William H. Vanderbilt, the New York Central railroad baron who so spoke, would be astounded today to see New York's two multimillionaire candidates for governor wooing the people from Long Island to Niagara Falls.
Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman, of another rail fortune, and Republican challenger Nelson A. Rockefeller, of the oil millions, have a concept exactly opposite Vanderbilt's.
They are dedicated to public careers. To further them, they are glad-handing anyone eligible to vote Nov. 4.
Both candidates stress informality despite — or perhaps because of — their immense social prestige and wealth. Harriman's fortune is estimated at more than 60 million dollars and Rockefeller's at more than 100 million.
Until the weather turned chilly, the candidates frequently went about in slacks, open-necked shirts and loafers.

Typical of the down-to-earth approach was Rockefeller's recent hand-shaking tour of a ewish section of the lower east side. He entered a delicatessen, bought a salami and walked down the street with it.
Harriman also works at the art of the smile and the handshake — and has had four more years of practice than Rockefeller. Harriman, seeking his second term, was first elected in 1954.
Rockefeller, naturally buoyant and cheery, and Harriman, reserved in appearance but equally gracious, have things in common besides their campaign techniques and their rich heritages.
Both have long been interested in public service.
Harriman, 66, formerly was ambassador to Moscow and London and secretary of commerce, among other high federal posts. Rockefeller, 50, served in appointive positions in the Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower administrations.
Rockefeller, riding in a campaign cavalcade, waves both hands Eisenhower-style to passersby with particular attention to persons leaning out of top floor windows of tenements.
He is getting accustomed to the rough and tumble of politics and he has injected a note of glamor into his campaign.
He is accompanied on trips in the New York metropolitan area by 11 young women, known as the Rockettes. They wear blue sweaters, white skirts and carry batons with white pom-poms.
Each sweater has a letter, so that when the young women stand in a row, they spell out "ROCKEFELLER."

Good Key to Economic Future

It's Your Pocketbook

By FAYE HENLE
(NEA Staff Writer)
Many yardsticks exist that measure this nation's industrial growth. One of these is the Federal Reserve Board's Index of Industrial Production. This serves as an excellent measurement of the recent past and often can be relied upon to predict the immediate future.
Gross national product — the dollar value of the goods and services we produce each year — is another fine index. Yet, this index fails to account for the declining purchasing power of our currency and thus is often discarded.
I've got a favorite among measurements foretelling our industrial future and hence the tempo of the economy. This is the amount of money that is being spent on research. Our future health and welfare depends to a far greater extent upon the new than the old.

definitely in the big business league, and in a year when cutbacks in company expenditures have been more frequent than increase, research is a growth industry.
To me this indicates an undeniable growth in industry and, specifically, in those industries where research expenditures are heaviest — machinery, chemicals, food, beverages and stone, clay and glass. These are key industries that dictate which way the business winds blow.
Study of research expenditures can be important to us beyond indicating the general business climate.
If we ferret out which are the fastest growing industries, these are the ones in which we should concentrate when we plan to enter into business. These show what areas we should concentrate upon when job hunting or which industries hold the greatest promise for us if we are investors.

ONLY OCCASIONALLY does some group take a census of research expenditures. And usually the results tend themselves to some questioning, if only on the grounds of semantics. When company budgets are drawn up, expansion and replacement of the old often are lumped into spending for research and development of the new. Thus, if you are taking a wide sampling of expenditure for research it is almost impossible to get a figure that is 100 per cent accurate.
Yet I think I've uncovered some news that is good.
The American Management Assn. recently attempted a survey of expenditures for research and development among more than 800 companies and came forth with the confirmation that such spending shows a 4 per cent rise over last year's outlay of some 7.3 billion dollars — up almost 20 per cent from 1956.

THE RESEARCH BUSINESS is PROBABLY — James J. Wadsworth, right, President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser, will probably be chief U.S. delegate to the nuclear-test-suspension talks which will open in Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 31. The United States and Great Britain have offered to suspend their tests for a year starting on that date if it looks like the talks are succeeding.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.
(Written for NEA Service)

The sack dress has been swallowed up in obsolescence. It has gone the way of so many temporary desires to be different. In spite of the rise and fall of the styles, we must not veer away from change. Change is essential if man is to make progress. Material change is always taking place and most of it is for the better.
Spiritual change is also taking place. Most of this is for the better. A few folk seek spiritual change for the better and find themselves following fads. They worship the golden calves or idols fashioned by man. They take seriously the imagined messages of the stars or of the tea leaves.
They soon find that these supernatural styles are no more satisfying than the sack dress. There is no spiritual change which will bring a person nearer to God except change through repentance, study of God's teachings and prayer.

It takes POWER to reach the goal

It is predicted Ohio will be the Number One industrial state by 1967.

Ohio's electric companies share this optimism. They'll "run interference" for this "power play" by continuing to provide plenty of low-cost electricity to meet additional requirements. That's very important in expanding industry and increasing jobs in Ohio.

During the last ten years Ohio's electric companies have invested more than one billion dollars in new facilities. They have doubled the total available power. They expect to double it again in the next decade.

No matter how fast Ohio grows, its electric companies must grow even faster to keep our power supply a step ahead. These companies will meet this goal — paying their own way.

Lester Kettering of Canton Delta Chapter, who is a member of the Grand Chapter Eastern Star Training Wards for Religious Leadership committee, and Mrs. H. W. Lundgren of Columbiana, who is a member of the vouching committee.

Mrs. Everett Buckles of Alliance, worthy matron, announced the program which included songs, a recitation and a drill routine by members of the Alliance Assembly No. 104 Order of the Rainbow for Girls, and band music by the DeMolay band, "Swing Tones," directed by Vance O'Donnell.

Miss Nancy Dean presented the recitation, "This is America." Mrs. Arthur C. Lembright Jr. is drill captain, and Miss Margaret Venez is drill leader, while the choir director is Mrs. Charles Guile.

Remarks were given by Mrs. Barbara Adams, mother advisor of the Rainbow Girls.

Decorations in the dining room were in keeping with the worthy grand matron's theme for the year, "With a Song in Your Heart." Black musical notes on a black staff the length of the table were used as decorations at each table. The speakers' table was graced with a bouquet of red carnations. Favors marked the individual place settings.

The decorating committee was comprised of conductresses and associate conductresses of the district. Matrons and associate matrons of the district planned the program and place of the party.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

The man who had a rug pulled from under him was busy taking pictures off some mighty famous walls last Tuesday. While Sherman Adams was packing, even his closest staff members knew not where the boss was heading. The word was that he had turned down Bernard Goldfine's offers and importuning, although the industrialist's empire is doing right well.

Of Mr. Goldfine's five textile plants, for example, all are paying their 1,200 men and woman well. One plant is on a three-shift basis. The mills are spread from Massachusetts to Main and, along with the branch offices and his real estate ventures, Goldfine could use Mr. Adams' organizing and administrative genius.

There were reports, too, that lumber and pulp producers had talked to the austere man to induce him to return to the industry he left some years ago when he gave up his promotion and public relations job in New York to battle for public office.

WHATEVER IT IS Sherman Adams does, he must do it swiftly. Bluntly, he is broke. But what this white-maned man of steel nerves wants to do even more quickly is to drift quietly out of the headlines. And for the quiet man, it would have been a quiet week if he hadn't been whipsawed by labor circles.

For months now, labor chiefs have been belting Adams with heavy speeches and even heavier type in their headline-making statements. Literally hundreds of thousands of leaflets and pamphlets snowflaked some 10 major union convention floors—blasting Adams. The labor people chanted—quit.

Not more than a week after Adams did his own version of the Duke of Windsor before the TV cameras, the "AFL-CIO News" suddenly found him not so bad a chap after all. The official voice of millions of unionists charged that Adams had really been ousted by the conservative wing of the Republican party because he had been friendly to labor in the past.

It seems to me to be the only possible interpretation of the paper's Sept. 22 editorial. It put Adams in a GOP group "that has displayed an understanding of labor's role."

As much as anything else in the Adams saga, this irritated those close to the former assistant to the president these past few days. During previous attacks on Adams, these associates had pointed out to at least one inquirer, that Adams was quite a labor expert and had worked closely with some union chiefs for many years.

WHEN HE WAS in the New Hampshire House of Representatives, Adams was chairman of the state labor committee. Textile Workers Union officials had easy access to him—as they did when he was governor.

When he got to the House of Representatives in Washington, Adams readily took a seat on the Labor Committee. Union chiefs found him easier to deal with than many of the others.

Then came the moment in 1956 when Adams, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Harold Stassen made up the Eisenhower combined-chiefs-to-staff. Together they wooed the labor movement.

It was Adams who made the final decision which moved the late Martin Durkin from the presidency of the AFL Plumbers Union to the President's cabinet as U.S. Secretary of Labor—the first union chief to hold this office.

Only once before had this post been offered to a labor leader. That was Calvin Coolidge's bid, via Herbert Hoover (then secretary of commerce), to an upcoming fellow named John L. Lewis.

It was Adams who approved Durkin's successor, Jim Mitchell, who certainly has given labor a square deal. But Adams turned on the ice water when the union people decided to attack President Eisenhower personally.

The labor chiefs "forgot" his old record until after he resigned. Then they remembered.

Engineer Returns to Work on Collision-Preventing Invention

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A penniless engineer has returned from a hobo jungle to continue work on an invention that may end plane collisions and earn him a fortune.

Elmer C. Meukel, a self-taught electronics whiz, came home to his wife and three children Sunday three months after hitting the hobo trail to escape the pressure of mounting bills.

Only slightly less eager than his family to welcome the 41-year-old Meukel back were the officers of the Polaris Engineering Co. of Los Angeles. They say the government is willing to spend five million dollars to develop his invention.

"We're ready to go to work on it right away," said En Radatz, president of the firm. The device is designed to detect an oncoming plane and automatically divert the aircraft to avoid a collision.

It was the company's report of the apparent success of Meukel's invention that started the search for him last Sept. 24. A newspaper reporter finally tracked him down in Reno, Nev.

Meukel, who learned engineering through correspondence

Upon his return Meukel learned that another engineering firm, Compaco, Inc., has filed suit for a million dollars damage, claiming Meukel's invention infringes on patents they hold for such a device. Meukel said he was certain his invention was entirely original.

He figures his contract with Polaris should bring him about $35,000 a year if the device works and is successfully marketed.

As he quoted the figure he tightened his arm around his wife Jean. She squeezed him back.

"The money isn't important," she said. "The main thing is you're home."

Eisenhower Eyes Congress Race

'Moderate' Ideal May Be At Stake

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower apparently is eager to lay his prestige heavily on the line in a stepped-up congressional campaign he says may decide the fate of "moderate government."

His White House pep meeting with GOP leaders Monday produced strong signs that he will bear down on the twin issues of socialism and higher taxes in a forthcoming chins-up tour to stir up Republican voters.

At the same time, he made it clear he is ready to take on all Democratic critics of the manner in which he has handled the crisis over Quemoy and Matsu.

GOP National Chairman Meade Alcorn reported Eisenhower was "very vigorous" in condemning those who contend the Nationalist-held islands aren't worth fighting for. Alcorn quoted the President as saying his critics missed the point that the principle of halting possible Communist aggression is involved.

Joint Statement

However, a joint statement issued by the conferees after a 2 1/2-hour session with Eisenhower laid heavy stress on the contention that continued Democratic control of Congress would point the country "down the left lane which leads inescapably to socialism."

Alcorn said the statement was revised to include some presidential suggestions. This led to an assumption that Eisenhower may be pigeon-holing his theme of "Modern Republicanism" for the time being in favor of an attack on the old-line GP's target of "socialism."

In the past some Republicans have grumbled that Eisenhower himself was too much of a New Dealer to suit them because of his proposals for expansion of social and welfare services of the government.

The presidentially approved statement pictured a black future for private enterprise if the Democrats win in November.

It said that because the Democratic party is "dominated by certain politico-labor bosses and left-wing extremists" any future Congress controlled by the party "would be far to the left of the New and Fair Deals."

"Taxation for political purposes would again become a harsh reality with an increased Democratic majority in Congress," the GOP leaders said. "Imposition of higher federal taxes to finance grandiose spending schemes would become a reality."

Alcorn quoted Vice President Nixon as expressing the belief at the conference that peace and economic recovery are the principal campaign issues.

Nasser Tightens Hold On U.A.R. Government

CAIRO (AP) — President Nasser's hold on Syria tightened today with the elimination of a vice president of the United Arab Republic who hindered close Egyptian rule of the province.

A sweeping reorganization of the U.A.R. government to centralize control of both provinces in Cairo was expected to be announced soon.

Sabri Assali, the last premier of Syria before it voluntarily joined Egypt under Nasser last February, said he had resigned the vice presidency he got when the two countries merged. The government-controlled Middle East News Agency said he was dropped.

Assali was removed to clear the way for a central government instead of the present system of dual ministries for the two provinces, the news agency said.

A representative of the old school of Syrian politicians, Assali was a brake on Nasser's plans to extend Egyptian control over the new province.

expectation that the Reds would prolong the truce beyond the one-week period they set themselves. The local air was filled with predictions of major Communist military action, when the period expires Sunday midnight — or even before.

Nationalist intelligence sources reported that the Communists had been commandeering motorized trucks along the China coast from Hong Kong area northward for a possible invasion of the Quemoy Islands. The Reds were reported to have ordered that none of the crewmen should be under 25 years of age because only experienced men were wanted.

Reports to the Defense Ministry said since the halt in the artillery war, 1,500 workers had been seen repairing old gun emplacements and building new ones on the Communist island fortress of Amoy, six miles from Quemoy.

Pope

The bulletin was signed by the Pope's personal physician, Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi; Antonio Gasbarrini, a specialist from Bologna; Mingazzini; and Ferdinand Corelli.

Scores of persons maintained a vigil outside the palace in this hill town 18 miles south of Rome. Thousands of messages of hope for his recovery poured into the Vatican. Around the world prayers were said.

The Pope suffered a blocking of blood to the brain soon after saying mass and receiving communion Monday. He fell into a coma and was partially paralyzed. Extreme Unction, the last rite of the Roman Catholic Church, was given, and members of his family were summoned.

Later in the day the pontiff rallied, and a bulletin at night said his condition had "appreciably improved" so far as the circulatory disturbances were concerned.

Federation

Lorain, Toledo, Youngstown, Dayton and Akron.

Staubenville, Zanesville and Mansfield also might win its benefits if their population passes the 50,000 mark in the 1960 census.

The hedge-podge of conflicting municipal, township and county jurisdictions started with the disruption of the old pattern of community life in most cities after World War II.

IT WAS THEN that Americans began to move into the suburbs in a steadily swelling stream.

There had been suburbs before this time, of course, but never on the grand scale they were to assume during the 13 years after 1945.

New developments on the periphery of cities like Youngstown began to spring up as young couples followed their dream of owning "a little place in the country."

The ring of hammers and whine of power saws was heard continuously as builders frantically tried to keep up with the surging demand for housing.

THERE WAS LITTLE, if any, planning behind the exodus. Prospective home owners wanted to live in the country and snapped up anything that was built there.

In their rush, some builders didn't always use first-quality materials or building methods. Shortcuts became the order of the day. To some, anything was justified as long as they could get the structure up fast.

City building department officials looked on helplessly all over the country as these developments sprang up under their noses — and just beyond the city limits where they had no authority.

But, even so, building regulations in those days were not always equal to the situation, because no one ever had seen such a building boom before. Everything was in a state of confusion.

MANY BUILDERS tried to induce city councils in municipalities to provide water and sewer service to the new allotments.

But they couldn't wait long for action. When they failed to receive immediate approval, they went ahead and drilled wells and installed septic tanks.

Sometimes lot sizes did not allow adequate leeching area for these tanks, even though they were installed in compliance with state regulations, and raw and partially treated sewage flowed out into the streets.

It wasn't long, either, before suburbanites found that a residential tax base isn't sufficient to support necessary services.

The new residents hadn't figured that moving to suburbia would mean doing without many of the commonest services they had enjoyed in the larger community.

FROM THE CITY'S viewpoint, burgeoning incorporated and unincorporated areas on its borders were a cause for concern.

Residential building lots in most large communities, as time went on, were almost exhausted within the city limits and there were few industrial sites available which would attract life-giving revenues.

Industries were forced to locate in the suburbs and were heartily welcomed there by residents who envisioned the relief the corporate tax dollars would give their overburdened purses.

Any attempt by the central city to annex this industrial territory — or any territory, for that matter — was resisted bitterly by the suburbanites.

In Ohio, stringent annexation laws, put through the State Legislature by its rural majority, made annexation extremely difficult. They still do today.

APPROVAL of residents of outlying areas must be obtained before annexation can take place. And such residents, conscious of the city's usually higher tax rate, have voted for the most part against joining cities in general.

Sometimes, as a result of squabbles over annexation, smaller communities have incorporated as villages and effectively blocked off any annexation attempts by cities.

Of late years, regional planning commissions have sprung up in metropolitan areas in an effort to provide intelligent guidance to future city expansion and correct, as far as it is possible, some of the glaring mistakes of the past.

THEY HAVE made considerable programs in many urban centers, but their work still is in its infancy and has a long way to go.

Planning commissions would not be included in federation plans set up under Question No. 1 on the Nov. 4 ballot, however, but very likely would be of vast help to any federation in the same advisory capacity that they now serve any city.

Proponents of the metropolitan federation amendment boost it as a measure which creates a common meeting ground on which hard-pressed residents of city and suburbs can get together and solve their thorny problems.

By pooling fire, police, sewer, water and other services as needed, they point out that residents not only can make the total cost of providing them less but actually offer better services which will attract business and industry to the area.

NO ONE is forced to do anything in the matter. The new amendment simply permits a federation to be formed — something that has not been possible before under Ohio law.

The voters have control throughout the procedure and they can have as much or as little federation as they think their situation warrants.

NEXT: There's no threat to any political subdivision.

Volunteers

Another speaker was Robert S. McCulloch, captain of the general team and a past chairman of the drive, who declared "it's not how little, but how much we can give to the campaign." He said a successful fund drive would be a fitting tribute to the retiring secretary.

Ralph Martin, public relations chairman, stressed the importance of team captains making their daily reports to headquarters and challenged the teams to compete with one another in their fund soliciting so that the drive would come to an early, successful conclusion.

GENERAL CHAIRMAN Hanna pointed out that the fund goal of $61,295 is $2,500 above last year but the budget requests of the participating agencies had been kept at a minimum.

The increase he explained, was due to the fact that the YWCA last year received only $3,500 for a half year's operation whereas this year's budget was for the full requirement of $7,000. The $1,000 usually contributed to the USO was dropped.

The Chest agencies and the amounts they are to be allotted are:

Boy Scouts	6,000
Catholic Charities Bureau	3,325
Central Clinic & Hospital	4,000
Girl Scouts	4,250
Home for Aged Ladies	1,650
Memorial Building	13,750
Quaker City Band	900
Salem City Hospital	9,500
Salem Home Nursing	3,000
Salvation Army	5,500
Y.W.C.A.	7,000
Administrative and campaign Expense	2,420

CHEST SOLICITORS will confine their canvassing to assigned territories until noon on Thursday. After that time and until the close of the drive, the entire city and suburban territory is open to all workers for soliciting.

Several hundred men and women who will work in the drive attended last night's meeting. The invocation was given by the Rev. William Snowball, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

Music was provided by the Legion Quaker City Band.

"Things are really rolling," Kerr added. "We're almost ready to pour the blacktop and the weather predictions are favorable."

In other business, the board discussed the "embarrassing" stone-throwing incident after the Salem Brookfield football game last Friday night. School officials spent the weekend trying to get to the bottom of the incident, in which two children were injured by stones thrown into a busload of Brookfield students.

Mr. Kerr announced that he is writing a letter of apology to the superintendent of the Brookfield school. Board members said Coach Earle Bruce has cautioned his squad not to start any fight on the field, regardless of provocation.

Mrs. Alta Peterson, principal of Buckeye School, requested the board's authorization for the purchase of an electric duplicating machine at a cost of $124.75. This matter was approved, unanimously, by the board.

Three men were appointed assistant janitors at a salary of $275 a month. Perry Coy will be at Reilly School, John Butch at Fourth St. School and Oscar Grimm will be at the Junior High School. All three men have satisfactorily completed probationary periods.

Darrell Fadely, business manager of the school system, and Mr. Kerr will attend the joint convention of the Ohio School Boards Association, the Ohio Association of School Administration and the Ohio School Business Officials, in Columbus, Nov. 11-13. Other members of the board may also attend.

E. Palestine Council Accepts Subdivision

EAST PALESTINE — City Council Monday night accepted into the city the Neely Manor, a realty subdivision at the extreme north-west edge of town.

By admitting the subdivision, Council assumed responsibility for maintenance of utilities.

However, Council's action was contingent on the application by the developer, Earl Neely, of an additional 100 tons of slag to the streets prior to paving, which will be done on an assessment basis.

The subdivision has been an issue in Council for two years. Its acceptance by Council was recommended last night by George S. Bloomgren of East Liverpool, city engineer, who had made a survey of street, water and sewage facilities.

Council also appropriated $2,000 for the purchase of a new cruiser for the police department to replace the 1955 model car which has been driven over 90,000 miles.

The safety-service director was authorized to advertise for bids.

It was announced that the city received several tax distributions during September, leaving a balance in the general fund as of Oct. 1 of $12,485. The cash on hand insures normal operation of municipal facilities, since the average monthly expense in the general fund is $4,000.

sociation is to take the "meaninglessness" out of lives and to gain real growth in maturity. With this in mind, the "Y" sponsors classes in sewing, bridge, knitting, ceramics, millinery, oil painting, water colors and Spanish. These courses are held at the YWCA building and are open to the entire community. A nominal fee is required in order to pay the instructor's fees.

The Y-teens have been, perhaps, the most active of the association's groups. During the past year, they have formed a chorus, entered a bowling league, sponsored a college girl tea, a college tour, formal dances, Christmas parties for Senior Citizens and for the underprivileged children, and style shows. Lectures have been held and studies made, by the group, on subjects such as the art of make-up, religion, dating, world fellowship, and racial problems.

AS AN AGENCY OF THE Salem Community Fund, the YWCA receives $7,000 per year to maintain their services. One of the features of the new building, is a large room to be used for calisthenics. A complete shower room is located next to this room.

The upper level features a 200-seat auditorium and a large kitchen and lounge. The lower level contains a large teen lounge. The calisthenics room will double as a recreation room for the Y-teens. After the opening of the new building, the old building will be in use, to accommodate overflow.

E. Palestine Teachers Are Granted Leaves

EAST PALESTINE — The Board of Education, meeting Monday night, granted leaves of absence to a number of teachers to attend fall meetings in their respect fields.

The board also authorized payment of September bills total $9,111. Two major items included in the disbursements were for purchase of 62 lockers for the junior high school and installation of new light poles at the municipal stadium. School Supt. T. R. Hei reported.

Schools will close here Oct. 10 to permit teachers to attend the annual Northeastern Ohio Teachers Assn. meeting in Cleveland.

Unemployment Compensation Question Before Ohio Court

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The matter of whether a jobless worker can receive supplemental unemployment benefits (SUB) and state unemployment compensation comes before the Ohio Supreme Court today.

No immediate decision is expected.

The state is appealing decisions by Mahoning County Common Pleas and Appellate Courts in two separate cases that SUB payments are legal. Also appealing are three intervenors from Columbus:

C. E. Morris Co., steel fabricators, contending legalizing SUB payments would discriminate against 92,500 employees who do not have SUB contracts; Donald Smith, a Timken employee, claiming he and 80 per cent of other seniority employees in SUB contract plants will never receive benefits because they will be the last to be laid off; Richard Ward, Westinghouse employee, saying he and 2,500 other non-SUB employees are penalized because any money they would receive while out of work would be subtracted from regular state unemployment benefits while SUB payments would not.

The United Steelworkers Union thinks SUB payments are not remuneration and amounts should not be deducted from state unemployment benefits. To make the point, the union brought suit against James Tichenor, administrator of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

Then, to make sure the case would not be thrown out of the Supreme Court because it was not brought in Franklin County, a second suit was brought.

Joseph Posey, a Youngstown steelworker, appealed a ruling from Tichenor and the board of review that his SUB payments must be deducted from regular state unemployment compensation checks.

Bob Turley Shuts Out Milwaukee in 5th Series Game 7-0

Spahn, Dittmar May Pitch 6th

McDougald Homers Off Lew Burdette

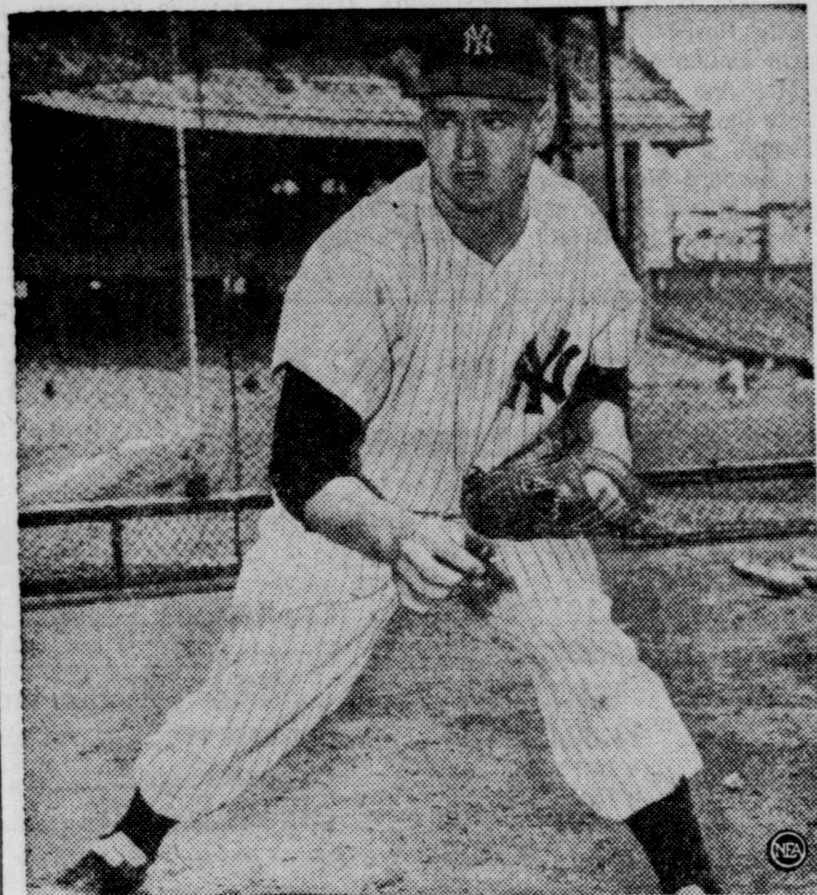

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Two-time Milwaukee winner Warren Spahn and New York's Art Dittmar appeared to be the logical candidates today to pitch Wednesday's sixth game of the World Series.

Bob Turley shut out the Braves 7-0 Monday. That gave the Yankees their second victory in five games and fanned their faint hopes of becoming the first team in 23 years to overcome a 3-1 handicap.

Neither manager — Fred Haney of the Braves or Casey Stengel of the Yankees — has announced his pitcher as yet. They said enough, however, to indicate that Spahn and Dittmar would get the call.

Asked whether he thought Spahn, who pitched a brilliant two-hitter in the fourth game Sunday, would be sufficiently rested by Wednesday, Haney replied: "He's got all winter to rest."

Spahn said: "I'll be ready, but

BOB TURLEY
"Cutie" on the Mound

dette in five fall meetings. Burdette didn't appear depressed.

"They got only one good hit off me in that sixth inning," he said, referring to Yogi Berra's double. "As for McDougald's homer, it was a freak. The ball hit the screen alongside the foul pole. It would have been a foul ball in our park."

Burdette would have had to pitch a shutout to match Turley's brilliant work. The strong-armed right-hander doled out five hits, all singles, and fanned 10. He walked three and was in trouble only once. That was in the sixth when Bill Bruton led off with a single and Red Schoendienst followed with a soft liner to left center. Elston Howard, playing left field in place of Norm Siebern, dashed in and made a spectacular sprawling catch in the outstanding defensive play of the series. Scrambling to his feet, he threw to Moose Skowron, doubling up Bruton. The Braves did not threaten after that.

Braves' Fred Haney Changed Style in Sixth Inning Strategy

NEW YORK (AP)—Might things have been different in the fifth game of the World Series if Manager Fred Haney of the Milwaukee Braves had followed his usual style of play in the sixth inning?

With New York Yankee bats booming for the first time in this series, it is hard to see how anything could have turned the tide in favor of the Braves, but take a look at this situation.

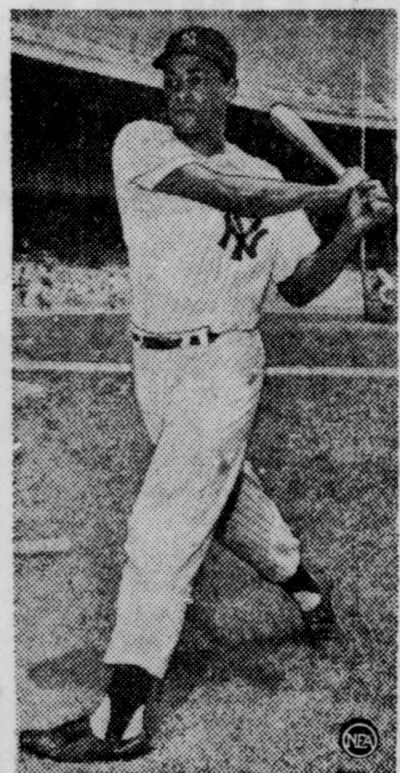

The Yankees were leading 1-0 going into the sixth. Billy Bruton, first man up for the Braves, singled to left center. Up to bat came Red Schoendienst. Normally Haney would call for a sacrifice in such a tight game. But Schoendienst was allowed to swing away.

Red lifted a short fly to short left center that might have been a hit if Elston Howard had not made a fine diving catch. Howard bounced to his feet and threw to Moose Skowron, who tagged Bruton to complete the double play.

Eddie Mathews then singled, and Hank Aaron ended the inning by striking out.

But if Schoendienst had advanced Bruton to second on a sacrifice, Bruton would have scored on Mathews' single and the game would have taken a different complexion. This might have given Lew Burdette, the Yankee-tamer, an inspiration to go on. Instead the roof fell on Lew in the bottom of the sixth and the Yankees won the game 7-0 and kept alive their series hopes.

The Yankees went on a rampage in the sixth. Hank Bauer opened with a single and after Jerry Lumpe had bunted foul on the third strike, Mickey Mantle singled to center, sending Bauer to third.

ELSTON HOWARD
Yankee's Fielding Star

Yogi Berra doubled to right, scoring Bauer and sending Mantle to third. Elston Howard was purposely passed. Skowron, however, came through with a sharp single to right that scored Mantle, and left the bases loaded.

Out came Burdette and in went Juan Pizarro. Gil McDougald, who had a homer in the third, greeted him with a double to left which scored Berra and Howard.

Tony Kubek struck out, but Bob Turley helped his own cause with a single to left that scored McDougald and Skowron. Bauer, up again, struck out, ending the inning.

Auburn's Tigers Back on Top Of Nation's College Gridgers

By The Associated Press
Auburn's Tigers, back in the familiar spot at the top of the national college football rankings, take on Kentucky next Saturday in an effort to become the first team to hold that place for more than a week this season.

Auburn, national champion last year, was rated only fifth in the preseason Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters. Ohio State was picked as No. 1. In just two weeks those positions have been reversed.

Ohio State slid after its second straight close call, a belated 12-7 decision over Washington.

Auburn climbed to the top with rather impressive victories over Tennessee and Chattanooga, drawing a rush of first-place votes from the experts to lead Oklahoma by 99 points this week.

According to the voting, the Game of the Week should be the meeting between third-ranked Army and fourth-ranked Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., Saturday. Another meeting of top 10 teams pits Michigan State, No. 9, against Pittsburgh, No. 10, at East Lansing, Mich.

Auburn drew 43 first-place votes from a total of 107 ballots this week and 813 points on the usual scoring basis of 10 for first, 9 for second, etc. Oklahoma trailed with 24 first and 714 points. Behind them were Army, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Wisconsin, Mississippi, Clemson, Michigan State and Pitt in order. Although the ranking order was completely shuffled, the only newcomer to the top 10 was Pitt, replacing Iowa.

The leading teams, with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Auburn (43) 813
2. Oklahoma (24) 714
3. Army (7) 678
4. Notre Dame (7) 654
5. Ohio State (8) 589
6. Wisconsin (6) 456
7. Mississippi (1) 357
8. Clemson (4) 301
9. Michigan State (1) 248
10. Pittsburgh (2) 214

Turley Preferred Trickery to Speed

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees are still alive in the World Series because Bob Turley had rather be a "cutie" than a powerhouse on the mound.

The 6-foot-2, 214-pound speedballer risked Manager Casey Stengel's wrath and a niche in the doghouse in pitching the Yankees to a 7-0 victory Monday at Yankee Stadium.

He didn't do it with blinding fast balls, for which he is renowned. He did it with curves and sliders which had Milwaukee's sluggers gawking with bats on their shoulders.

He was taking a gambling chance.

After Turley had been shelled from the mound in the first inning of the second game at Milwaukee, with the Yanks finally losing 13-5, Stengel reportedly was fit to be tied.

"The fancy stuff got him," Stengel said. "He is a fast ball pitcher. He should stick to his fast ball."

On that occasion, Turley's curves, sliders and sinkers were missing the plate, forcing him to come in with his hard one. This was all the Braves wanted. They waited and teed off.

They waited again Monday, but without the same luck. Turley's teasers were clipping the corners and bending over the plate. The Braves' big guns — Bill Bruton, Hank Aaron, Eddie Mathews and Wes Covington — were constantly being caught off balance.

"I guess about three fourths of my pitches were curves or sliders," he said. "I threw sidearm and overhead. I felt I was in control all the way."

Stengel had reason to be pleased.

"The difference in the way he pitched today and last week," commented the dour manager, "was that today when he threw a curve it was a strike and they couldn't hit it. In the other game when he threw a curve it was a ball and they didn't have to hit it."

Series Briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Figuring the World Series:

Bob Turley is only the second pitcher in World Series history to strike out 10 or more batters in two series games. The Yankee right-hander fanned 11 Dodgers in the sixth game of 1956 and set down 10 Braves Monday. The only other pitcher to fan 10 or more in two games was Walter Johnson.

The Yankees will be out to snap a four-game series winning streak at home by the Braves Wednesday. Milwaukee won its last two games against New York in 1957 and the first two in County Stadium this year.

In addition to tying one series record — most hits (59) and setting another most total bases (97) — Yogi Berra of the Yanks also has broken the record for most times at bat in the series. He has batted 215 times. The old mark was 199 by Joe DiMaggio.

Massillon Clings to Second; Alliance Fourth

Warren Harding Still Ohio's Top Team

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Warren Harding clung to the top spot in The Associated Press weekly high school football poll today, extending its lead over second-place Massillon.

The Black Panthers turned in a nifty 30-12 conquest over sixth-ranked Mansfield to get the nod from 40 sports writers. The Tigers had surrendered only eight points to three previous victims before running into Gene Slaughter's powerhouse.

Cleveland Cathedral Latin, 50-0 winner over Glenview, retained third place, and Alliance's Aviators held the fourth spot with a 28-14 verdict over Barberton's Magics, first loss for the Junie Farrell's team.

From there on the standings were scrambled. Elyria whipped Cuyahoga Falls 22-0 to move from eighth to fifth, Cleveland Benedictine's idle defending state champs dropped a notch to sixth, Toledo Libbey won 22-0 over Toledo Scott to scoot from ninth to seventh, pushing Springfield down a peg.

Mansfield dropped out of the elite list after losing to Warren, and Youngstown East also landed among the also-rans after winning 14-8 over Youngstown Ursuline.

Marion Harding moved into ninth place, and Lou Juillerate's Troy team, with 31 straight victories, vaulted into tenth by beating Greenville 28-0. Gordon Larson's Marion team gained stature with its 40-0 verdict over Dahton Roosevelt.

From here and there: Painesville Harvey's fabulous John Mumme, last year's state scoring leader, played only the first half in Friday's 58-6 romp over Geneva. But he added 28 points to his total to reach 106 for the season as the Red Raiders made it 13 in a row. Wellston also made it 13 straight by sneaking past Pomeroy 8-6. Sophomore fullback Carl Surrent scored all four touchdowns in Jackson's 28-3 win over Nelsonville.

Wendell Wiekel has thrown 10 touchdown passes to Tom Urban in Jeromesville's four six-man games. As Gil Smith's Van Wert team made it 41 in a row against Shawnee Friday, Charley Young returned the opening kickoff 95

Massillon's 19-7 win over Steubenville's Big Red came late. Steubenville took a 7-6 lead with seven minutes to go, but Massillon's Jim Snively, a 150-pound sub half-back, ran the kickoff back to the team made it 41 in a row against Shawnee Friday, Charley Young returned the opening kickoff 95

merit rated

RATES

Your accident record sets your rate with the new SAFE-T-RATE plan!

EXCLUSIVE WITH NATIONWIDE—a bold new idea in auto insurance—based on a completely new concept of setting premium rates. SAFE-T-RATE, the plan Nationwide has pioneered, is now available to qualified car owners. Here's real merit-rated auto insurance. With SAFE-T-RATE, your accident record sets your rate!

SAFE-T-RATE: How it works

You set your own premium rate—higher or lower—depending on your personal accident record. Using 9 possible rate levels, you start out with a rate determined by your past insurance history. Then, after the first year, depending on your safety record under the SAFE-T-RATE plan, your rates go down—or up—from your original rate level. With each successive accident-free year, your rates go down until you reach a low, low minimum premium!

SAFE-T-RATE: Top driving security

In addition to this new rating method, you get broad insurance coverage—including 20 liberalized benefits—with prompt, friendly claims service. SAFE-T-RATE means quality protection—while your rates go down with each accident-free year!

SAFE-T-RATE: Our policyholders' idea

This revolutionary new plan is a direct result of recommendations made by our Advisory Committee of Policyholders. This policyholder group asked for some means to reward accident-free drivers. The result? A bold new idea in auto insurance—SAFE-T-RATE!

The fact is, Nationwide's policyholder-participation program is just one of many such programs designed to stimulate the growth of new ideas. In this way Nationwide continues to implement bold new concepts for the increased security of you and your family. SAFE-T-RATE is just one of many Nationwide firsts—just one of many new ideas for a new era. Sports Sketches

By GORDON ARNDT

The Brookfield game last Friday night marked the fourth straight time this season that Salem was not at full strength because of injuries.

The most adverse condition under which the Quakers were performing was that fullback Lou Slaby was not used on offense. The big senior was utilized strictly on defense because of an injury occurring in the Canton Timken tilt.

Slaby ran the ball 16 times against Timken and amassed 161 yards while scoring twice. The loss of even the opportunity to duplicate this feat against the Warriors hurt the locals' offensive.

Salem rushed for 354 yards against Timken but only 86 against Brookfield.

Salem not necessarily would have won the game had Slaby run the ball but it would have helped. One of the big reasons for the Quakers' defeat was that their defense left apart.

Ravenna and Timken totaled between them but 81 yards rushing but Brookfield gained 357 yards rushing including 244 by Ed Ulmer alone.

Ulmer's 100-yard run for the Warriors' first score was 19 more yards rushing than Salem had allowed in all of two previous games.

IT SEEMED that Brookfield was playing with the determination and revenge in mind that Salem possessed when they smashed East Palestine 41-6 in 1957 and when they clobbered Ravenna 34-0 just over two weeks ago.

Brookfield held an hour and 45-minute pep rally last Friday afternoon. To say the least, it must have contributed handsomely to their win.

Last year's 19-7 loss to Salem snapped a 28-game Warriors' win streak. No wonder the Blue and Gold were out for revenge.

Salem, however, did show a lot of fight and the drive that they are capable of, during the last period. They scored twice including once on an 84-yard drive in the last three minutes.

This fighting spirit on the part of the Quakers even continued into a few post-game activities.

What this enabled them to do is your guess.

Brookfield's four TDs came on drives of 100, 81, 98 and five yards while Salem's were for 49 and 84 yards.

Salem made nine first downs last Friday but did not record one via rushing until the fourth period.

THEIR LONGEST gain on the ground was a 13-yard dash by Ralph Ehrhart.

Ehrhart continued his fine punting and now has a 38.6 average from the line of scrimmage.

Kent Malloy displayed his ability to throw the ball by completing seven of 14 although two were intercepted, one of which led to Brookfield's fourth score.

On two or three occasions his receivers couldn't hold on to a perfect pitch.

Only two minutes and 41 seconds transpired between Brookfield's third and fourth touchdown. The Warriors' mentor must have wanted to run up the score. His first stringers were playing even though he was ahead 26-0.

Salem has five games remaining. The toughest opponent remaining I think will be East Liverpool with Youngstown East, Wooster, Wellsville and Leetonia following in that order.

THE QUAKERS tangle with Wooster this Friday at 8:30 p.m. in the annual "Dad's Night" contest.

Comparative scores are not a sound way to compare teams but here are a few anyhow. Salem beat Timken 21-0. Timken defeated New Philadelphia 6-0 while New Philly beat Wooster 16-8. Timken won over Dover 13-7, a team that tied Wooster 14-14.

Are you superstitious, Salem has lost twice in their white jerseys but has won two while in the red shirts.

James Gamble of Winona and Ernie Guidon of Columbiana, both 5-10 sophomores, are listed on the soccer roster for the Earlham College Quakers of Richmond, Ind.

JOHN DAWSON, assistant manager of the Memorial Building, has announced that the basketball floor will be open to the public from 9

LITTLE LIZ

Hard Times Are Seen Ahead For Communists of France

By JAY G. HAYDEN

If you're looking for the most significant event at this moment, in a notably cockeyed world, consider the confirmation of Gen. Charles de Gaulle as dictator of France by a 4 to 1 popular majority. Voters included not only the residents of metropolitan France, but of a score of its overseas territories.

Stalin and Khrushchev in Russia, Hitler in Germany and Mussolini in Italy achieved triumphs comparable statistically, but by the obvious process of giving the voters only one choice and making them vote with a heavily armed policeman looking over their shoulders.

In contrast, voters in France and its dominions voted more freely than has been the case in most of the democracies around the world—including the United States, if the traditional wholesale exclusion of Southern Negroes is considered.

Certainly, as to France proper, there was no appreciable coercion relative to rolling up a margin of 78.5 per cent in favor of the De Gaulle constitution. And in Algeria the margin of more than 95 per cent "oui" votes including those of French settlers and native Moslems, was almost embarrassing.

AS TO THE LATTER, only 17 per cent of the registered voters stayed away from the polls, despite fierce threats by the Moslem rebels against all those who dared to vote. In France proper the turnout of voters was 84.9 per cent—vastly greater than ever before in a French election.

Most snowed-under of all were the French Communists who, through all previous elections since World War II, have maintained substantially a quarter both of popular votes cast and of membership in the Chamber of Deputies. Of seats in the now expiring Chamber the Communists have 148 in a total of 592.

The Communist vote is estimated to have dropped to 17.5 per cent. That figure is arrived at if one regards all the "no" votes as cast by Communists.

The 17.5 percent figure may even be conservative, for the opposition included anti-communist socialists on the leftward fringe, leading middle-ground personalities such as former Premier Mendes-France and Bourges-Maunoury and the followers of Pierre Poujade on the extreme right who polled 11.4 per cent of the total vote and elected 52 members of the Chamber of Deputies in 1956.

Many competent observers of the French scene have argued all along that the heavy vote cast for Communist candidates in France was not so much due to adherence to that party as a means of registering a protest against a governmental system that provided little good for anybody.

The conclusion of these same observers now is that a great number of the heretofore Communist voters switched, like everybody else to De Gaulle as their best means for protest.

THERE MAY BE worse days ahead for the Communists. The next voting will be in November, for the choice of a new Chamber of Deputies. And in the meantime, De Gaulle will proclaim a revision of the election laws, which certainly will not be so aimed to help the Communists or other extremist groups.

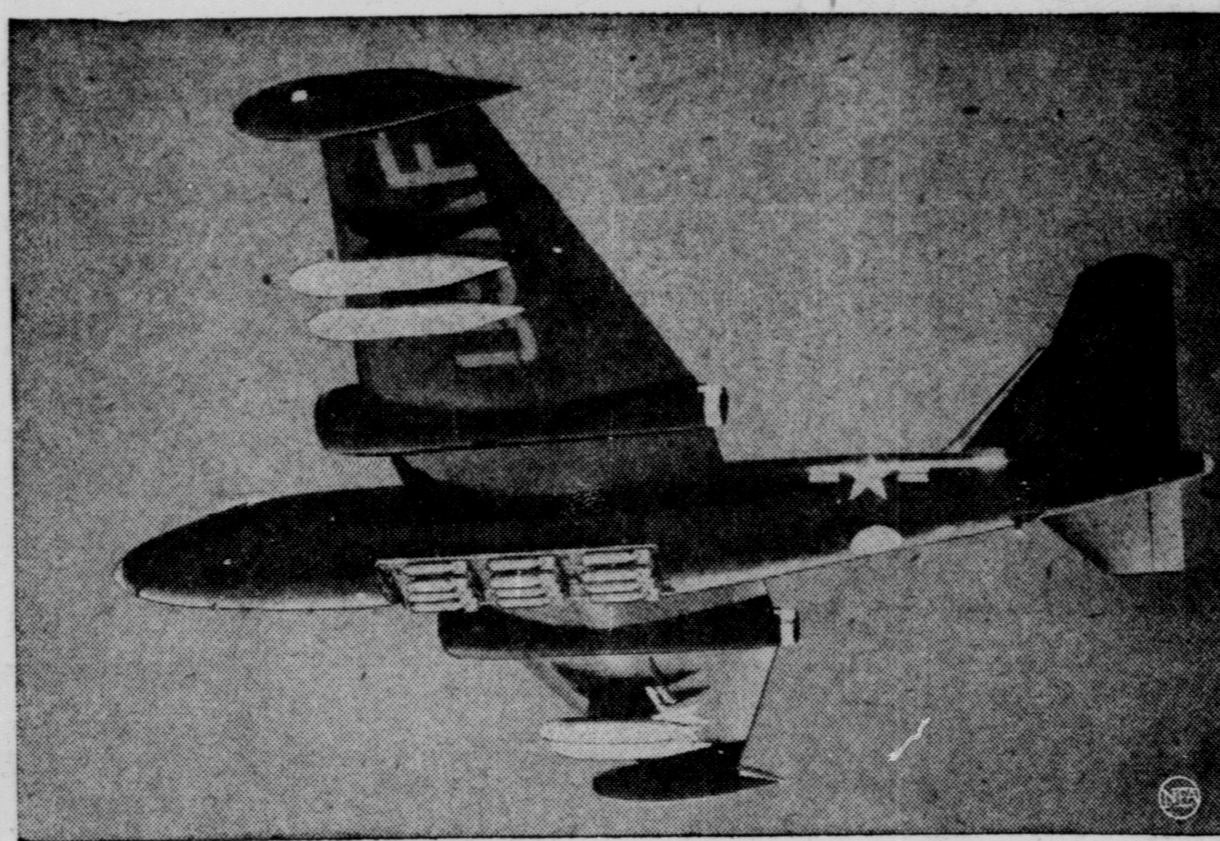

The new system, rather, is expected to endeavor to lessen the number of parties and more particularly, from De Gaulle's standpoint, to concentrate his support behind a single ticket.

Since De Gaulle's formal support now embraces all parties from Guy Mollet's socialists to Antoine Pinay's far-right independents, the logical expectation is a race between that wide, middle-of-the-road group, running in the name of De Gaulle, against Communists on the left and a conservative bobtail, possibly led by the distinctly unconservative Mendes-France.

Part of De Gaulle's success no doubt was due to his failure to declare policies clearly as to either domestic affairs or the all-pervading problem of Algeria. And that omission probably will continue at least until after the new Parliament is elected.

De Gaulle's present triumph, however, is so overwhelming as to leave scarcely any doubt that he will step into a seven-year presidency of the Republic next January with virtually no official opposition.

KE CAN'T MAKE IT COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President Eisenhower said Monday he will not be able to campaign in Ohio on behalf of Republican candidates for Congress. He was invited by U. S. Sen. John Bricker (R-Ohio) to speak in Cleveland Oct. 23, but he said in a letter his schedule is too tight.

LOADED FOR BEAR — High altitude B-57 American jet bombers similar to the one depicted in this file photo have arrived in Formosa to bolster U.S. striking power in war-threatened Formosa Strait.

COLUMBIANA

Water Line Construction On Council Agenda Tonight

COLUMBIANA—Village Council meets in regular session at 7:30 tonight in the municipal building. In addition to routine business, the legislators are expected to award a contract on the labor phase of the Water Department's project of installing a new line from the reservoir and well southeast of town to hook in with mains in town.

The Board of Public Affairs had asked for bids on supplying labor and materials for excavating 9,983 feet of ditch. At a special meeting last week, Council awarded a contract to a Chicago firm for supplying 9,700 feet of pipe for the new line.

Karam Sheban of Youngstown, who has been serving as spokesman for a group of seven Mahoning Valley men backing the proposed 15-store shopping center just north of the village, has repeated the group's intention of proceeding with the project. He said many leases have been signed with prospective tenants, but a few still are in the process of negotiation.

Sheban said the group never would have exercised its option on the 14-acre plaza site if it hadn't intended to go ahead with the project.

HOHENHEIM, Germany (AP) — Duane Mootz of Hillsboro, Ohio, finished 14th in the World Plowing Contest Saturday with 19.96 points. Another American, Lawrence Goettmoller of St. Henry, Ohio, was out of the money. The contest was won by a Briton who had 156.42 points.

350 RECALLED

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — About 35 workers are being recalled at the Lorain works of the U. S. Steel Corp.'s National Tube Division. The return to work this week will increase employment at the plant to 8,600. There still are 2,200 unemployed. The boost in employment was to handle demand for semi-finished steel products, a company spokesman said.

WOMAN ELECTED

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — The Izaak Walton League, which urges conservation of natural resources, has named a woman to head its Ohio division for the first time. She is Mrs. Ida Kuhlman of Cincinnati, elected during the annual state convention here.
